Why *.geek.nz?

The Internet is a crucial part of what it means to be a geek. It is the primary means of communication, of income and of networking. Without geeks, the Internet would not exist. Why not celebrate this fact by creating the 2ld geek.nz? You could make the argument that if you're going to make geek.nz, then why not girl.nz or fashion.nz? My answer would be that girls and fashion (and the myriad and infinte other options) are not part of the creation of the Internet, they are part of its users. Geeks are its creators.

And also, as someone else pointed out, why not?
